

Lynette Beebe

I am mainly a self-taught artist. My current medium is mixed media. For me, the creative process is a meditation, a joy, a struggle, and a heart journey. I believe creativity is Spirit showing me great and wonderful things, as well as helping me to understand painful and difficult things. Art is my survival, my healer, and my therapy. As far back as I can remember, I've known this—whether the medium was fabric, paint, music, or writing.

When I was very young, my Dad and I would play a drawing game: one of us made a random scribble mark on paper and the other had to finish the drawing. I didn't realize it at the time, but I was learning to use my instincts to discover possibilities rather than relying on fact. I believe this is what is meant by "intuitive" art. And this is my creative practice even now—make a mark, respond to what I see and feel, repeat, etc.

I am intrigued by bold color, texture, collage, and quirky figures. I experiment with different types of media, substrates and mark-making tools. I like to build layers, add texture, scrape back to previous layers - and I love scribble marks. I try to trust my innate reactions, go with my gut, see what happens, and never stop learning.

My hope is that viewing my work will lift your spirits, make you smile, and inspire you to find a way to practice creativity in your own life.
